To the gallant three hundred whose glory will nev "Follow," and up the hill, up the hill, up the hill, Follow d the Heavy Brigade.

The trumpet, the gallep, the charge, and the might of the fight !--Down the hill slowly thousands of Russians. Drew to the valley, and halfed at last on the height, With a wing pushed out to the left and a wing to the

But Scarlett was far on ahead, and he dashed up alone Thro' the great gray slope of men, And he wheel'd his sabre, he held his own Like an Englishman there and then; And the three that were nearest him follow'd with

Wedged themselves in botween horse and horse, · Fought for their lives in the narrow gap they had made, Four amid thousands; and up the hill, up the hill Gallop't the gallant three hundred—the Heavy Brigade.

Fell like a cannon shot; Burst like a thunderbolt; Crashed like a hurricane: Broke thro' the mass from below : Drove thro' the midst of the foe : Plunged up and down, to and fro; Rode flashing blow upon blow, Brave Inniskillings and Groye, Whirling their asbres in circles of light! And some of us, all in amaze, Who were held for a while from the fight, And were only standing at gaze, When the dark-muffied Russian crowd Folded its wings from the left and the right. And roll'd them around like a cloud-O, mad for the charge and the battle were we When our good redocats sank from sight Like drops of blood in a dark-grey sea; And we turn'd to each other, muttering, all dismay

But they rode like victors and lords Through the forest of lances and swords, In the heart of the Russian hordes They rode or they stood at hay. Struck with the sword hand and slow, Down with the bridle hand draw The foe from the saddle, and threw Under foot there in the fray. Raged like a storm, or stood like a rock In the wave of a stormy day: Till, suddenly, shock upon shock, Stagger'd the mass from without; For our men gallop't up with a cheer and a shout, And the Russian surged and waver'd and resl'd Up the hill, up the hill, up the hill, out of the field, Over the brow and away. . .

THE PEDIGREE OF THE BONARS One of the twelve who signed the representation regarding the "Marrow Modern Divinity" in 1721 was the Rev. John Bonar, M.A., minister of Torphichen, to which parish he had been ordained in 1698. He was altogether in sympathy with the "Marrow" brethern, and in 1742, notwithstanding his age and infirmity, he made a journey to Cambuslang to witness the great revival of religion there, and to assist at he dispensation of the communion to the assembled thousands. He died in 1747. when verging on the 80th year of his age. The story of this man's youth is a curious one. He was a son of the Laird of Kilgraston, in Perthsbire, and his father was a bigoted Episcopalian. When John was a student at St. Andrews, his father actually instigated the Principal to threaten him with expulsion from the University unless he took the communion in the alien Episcopal form. This threat was administered, but, without In his "Theology of Consolation," first published, the Rev. David Agnew reminds us of the interesting fact that this old worthy was the progenitor of the Bonars whom we all know so well to-day-the three brothers, the Rev. John James Bonar, of Greenock: Dr. Horatius Bonar, the hymnwriter; and Dr. Andrew Bonar, of Glasgow, the biographer of the sainted MacCheyne. In each generation descendants of the old Torphichen pastor of the seventeenth century have occupied an honoured place in the ministry. His son was the minister of Fetlar, in Shetland; his grandson was the minister of Cockpen, and afterwards of Perth : a great-grandson was the minister of Cramond; and a great-greatgrandson was the minister of Larbert, and lutterly the Convener of the Colonial Committee of the Free Church. The father of the three Bonars of to-day was the eldest son of the minister of Perth, and was solicitor of Excise. There can be few cases in the Scottish Church
